Apple Aperture This program is more of a professional editing application geared toward photographers and other photo-creative people. It works only on a Mac system and comes with many features that are available in Photoshop Elements. Aperture stores images in the desktop version using the Lightroom database, which helps you quickly organize your images. Aperture also enables you to create your own books, provide high-quality prints, and create special effects. Apple recommends Aperture as the standard for professional photographic software.

Terbium photocatalyzed oxidation of sulfide to elemental sulfur. Nanoparticle catalysts were prepared by calcinating Tb₂O₃ nanoclusters with the aim of studying their properties in photocatalysis. TbCl₃, a by-product of the nanocluster calcination, is removed from the precursor by washing with acetone and the produced Tb₂O₃ is employed for the oxidation of sulfides. The Tb₂O₃ shows a high activity (Ox = 2.66), whereas the activity decreases with increasing calcination temperature. Evidence for the sulfur product include XRD, Raman and NMR spectroscopies, and TEM, Raman and XPS. Update: We are sorry to announce that due to technical problems with our servers, the results of the poll were not counted. We apologize for this and we will take the name of this poll down. The poll is now over, and we are very sorry that it had to be stopped. Unfortunately, there was a system failure, and we could not retrieve all of the results of the poll. This is very disappointing, because we had already worked hard on this poll. Not only have we worked hard on it, but we spent money in order to reduce the number of invalid votes that are likely to have been cast. The thing is, we don't want to "cheat" and we want to be honest with our readers – so we will not reveal the results of the poll again. If any of you are interested, however, please do let us know. Do you think Tomiko Mamiya is the prettiest girl in the anime industry? — Obviously, this is an important poll and we respect everyone's opinion. We also want to thank those that voted for the poll. While the poll was running, the number of votes was increasing and the results were pretty clear. Of course, we would like to have more time to consider the results and respond to them, but unfortunately, we do not have the time. Unfortunately, there were too many invalid votes and it was impossible to detect them. In order to ensure that people will not cheat, we have stopped the poll. We do not want to cheat and we are very sorry that we could not be honest with our readers. This is a very important poll and we are very sorry to be unable to
