You can have windows minimize to the taskbar. You can also have windows minimize to the tray or show in their minimized state. You can also define a hotkey that will restore all minimized windows. Another hotkey will close all windows. Two hotkeys will close all opened windows. Another hotkey will close all minimized windows. Many people use Window Minimizer to hide, restore and minimize to tray. Windows Minimizer is fast and easy to use and has many nice features, for example, you can click on the minimize to tray icon and the window will open to its own minimized state, or click it to toggle the window to its closed or minimized state. Windows Minimizer is free and is certainly worth a try. AceHide is an application that will help you turn windows back on and it can be very useful if you are trying to use a game or some other program in a window but are unable to reach the minimize/maximize/close buttons as you have the window minimized. This is particularly useful for Microsoft Office programs where there are 3 windows open at once. AceHide is free for personal use. Menumaximizer is an easy to use utility that allows you to quickly toggle between displaying minimized windows or restored windows to your taskbar. You can also configure it to display windows maximized, and then if your mouse moves to the top or bottom edge it will restore the windows to their original size. It is very useful for trying to work with an application that was minimized to the system tray, or an application that has multiple panes open but all were previously minimized.

Menumaximizer is free for home use and requires a small download. 5ec8ef588b
