I also include a Video showing of How to Crack and Download the Adobe Zii forQ: Writing to stdout from within a function How would I write to stdout from within a function and send it to the console? I'm using the following code which does not work: from flask import Flask import time app = Flask(__name__) @app.route('/') def hello_world(): for i in range(10): print "hello",i time.sleep(1) return 'true' if __name__ == '__main__': app.run() A: In the event of executing your code from the command line, you can use a shell pipe: python myscript.py | more This will enable you to read your output within the Python REPL. If you want to redirect output for the entire process to stdout, you can use the following: python myscript.py > /dev/null This will send all output to /dev/null, and will allow you to interact with the Python REPL.
